

Working with CLAS Students in Distress

As instructors and academic staff you play a crucial role in supporting student well-being. You're often the first to notice when a student is struggling. While emotional ups and downs are normal throughout the year, sometimes you might see a student acting differently or behaving in a way that raises concerns.

If you feel the student is an imminent risk to self or others contact:

- If the student is on Campus—Call University of Iowa Police Department (UIPD) at 319-335-5022
- If the student is off Campus—dial 911 for local law enforcement

Co-response options:

For both UIPD and Iowa City Police Department (ICPD), you can request that a mental health liaison co-respond with law enforcement

The presence of a non-uniformed co-response support person can greatly help deescalate situations and provide a more robust crisis response

Your Responsibilities are:

- To be sensitive to mental health concerns
- To encourage students to seek help
- To connect students with campus resources

If the student has shared significant mental health concerns with you, please do the following:

- Provide a supportive response acknowledging the student's concerns.
- Please copy (using CC) the following offices in your response to the student. If shared via email, make sure to include the student's original email in your reply.
 - For undergraduate students:
 - clas-undergrad@uiowa.edu
 - emily-hurst@uiowa.edu
 - dos@uiowa.edu
 - For graduate students:
 - erika-christiansen@uiowa.edu
 - dos@uiowa.edu

Sample email response

Feel free to tailor to your needs and language:

"Thank you for sharing with me. I am sorry to hear you are struggling with XXX and want to connect you with the support you need. I am including CLAS UP, the CLAS Student Care Manager, and the Dean of Students, and on this email to ensure you can connect."

If you are concerned about a student, but they have not directly shared concerns with you or it is not a significant mental health concern, please use the CLAS UP Student Academic Concern Form.

Suggestions When Dealing with Distressed Students:

Do:

- Speak with the student privately; try to remain calm and be clear and direct
- Reflect back that you are glad they reached out for help and care about their well being
- Express concern in a non-judgmental terms
- If concerned about suicide, ask about directly; asking about suicide does not give someone the idea and people feel that you are really hearing them and wanting to help
- Focus on specific behaviors you have observed that concern you Take care of yourself; dealing with students in distress is demanding and draining work

Don't:

- Feel as if you must "solve" the problem for the student; instead: consult, refer, and follow up if appropriate
- Minimize the student's feelings
- Be afraid to ask about suicide
- Jump into "advice mode" and instead listen and reflect back what you are hearing
